

Flying High for Haiti in cooperation with SmithDavidson Gallery is pleased to invite you to the fundraising exhibition 'Egenis' marking the anniversary of Hurricane Matthew:

Nov. 2nd, 2017

'Egenis'

Ile-a-Vache a year after Hurricane Matthew

Works by Jason Henry & Stefanie Moshammer

Flying High For Haiti, a non-profit organization focused on children's education and art, whose principal mission is to fund École du Village, a community school in Ile-à-Vache, Haiti, to pay the teacher's salaries, build new classrooms and purchase school materials. During the festive opening, accompanied by the photographers, guests are able to acquire works through a silent auction.

Acclaimed Haitian-American author Edwidge Danticat will officially open the exhibition.

November 2nd 2017
at SmithDavidson Gallery
7580 NE 4th Court, Suite 107 & 108, Ironside, Miami
7.30 pm - 9.30 pm

Award-winning photographers Jason Henry and Stefanie Moshammer traveled to Haiti with FHFH founder Ines Lozano after the hurricane to document the damage after Matthew and begin fundraising for reconstruction.

The exhibition runs until December 1st.
 Works will also be available for acquisition during this time.

FREE PARKING IS AVAILABLE

For more information and availability, please contact SmithDavidson Gallery.

